Hardy Lilies to Bloom in Your Garden from May until October

{With all costs of Delivery Prepaid}

AURATUM PLATYPHYLLUM — At last I can offer home grown bulbs of this variety of the Auratums to my customers. It is the easiest one of the Auratums to grow. You probably know it by the name of "Gold Band" lily, because of its central band of gold on each petal in a face of pure white. Plant it 10 inches deep, in an acid soil well drained, rich with leafmold, plenty of water during growing season, and under favorable conditions it will attain a height of 8 to 10 feet. Blossoms in August. Supply limited.

	Each	6	12	25
Medium size bulbs	$.50	$2.75	$5.00	$9.15
Large bulbs75	4.00	7.50	14.10

AMABILE—This lily has bright waxy orange scarlet blossoms, is early blooming and you will find it a splendid rock garden lily or for low group planting. Height 1 to 2 feet. Blooms June.

Flowering size	$1.35	$2.50	$4.95	$18.00
Larger bulbs	2.00	3.50	6.85	25.75

BROWNII—This is a wonderful lily. It is the true Brownii, has a trumpet shaped blossom, marble white with emerald green throat, brown anthers, and so transparent in the sunshine that the purple of the reverse side blends beautifully with the green and brown tones of the inner surface. Height 2 ft. Blooms July.

Each $2.00; three bulbs $5.50; six bulbs $10.00

CALLOSUM—Callosum has a slender wiry stalk, bearing 10 to 20 recurved blossoms of an interesting shade of light salmon. This little lily isn't as outstanding as the larger lilies, but it is very dainty, and its numerous blossoms will blend with any flower in your garden. Height 2 to 3 ft. Blooms late July-August.

CANDIDUM (Madonna Lily)—Our grandmothers loved this lily—so do you and I. We love the pure whiteness of its bell shaped flowers and its dainty fragrance. We do so want it in our gardens, yet my advice is that you plant the bulbs early (July or August) in a sunny location, apart from other lilies, cover with no more than 2 inches of soil—poor location will do—and then let them alone. If the weather is favorable you will have splendid success, but if cold and damp one day, hot sunshine the next, the leaves will turn brown. We have to take our chances with the weather, but it is worth it. Height 3 to 5 ft. Blooms June.

CERNUUM—I am glad I can offer you this little lily from Northeast China. It is quite dainty. The stems are slender and rigid with grass like foliage. The color is lilac pink, spotted wine color and delightfully fragrant. It grows 12 to 18 inches and blooms in June. I have more bulbs to offer my customers than last year, but even yet the supply on the market is limited, so it would be well to place your orders early.

CONCOLOR—The longer I grow this lily the better I like it. Its dainty red blossoms make such a bright spot in the garden in June, after the pastel shades of the bearded iris have gone. And those who prefer a lily that does not hang its head, will find the blossoms of this lily looking straight into the sky. It is excellent for mass effect. Height 12 to 20 in. Blooms June.

TENUIFOLIUM

GIGANTEUM HIMALAICUM—A giant among lilies.

Under ordinarily favorable conditions the spikes have grown 10 to 12 feet. The foliage is broad and dense in keeping with the height of the plant, and the flowers are pure white tinged with purple inside, tubular shaped. It is best that this lily become established one year before it blooms, in order to make new bulbs. This is its method of perpetuating itself—therefore I am sending the size bulbs that will give correct growth for this lily. A northern exposure, or where it may be sheltered from the direct rays of the sun will be ideal for the Giganteum Himalaicum. June blooming.

Each $2.50; three bulbs $6.45; six bulbs $12.10

HANSONI—Of all the lilies, this is probably one of the hardiest and most disease proof lilies in existence, and although it isn't my favorite lily, yet I wouldn't be without a few of these thick petaled golden yellow nodding flowers in my garden. They bloom at the same time, and blend so well with the blues of the Delphinium, and the Campanula and the Canterbury-bells. It will endure sunshine but a little shade will preserve the deep yellow of its blossoms. Height 3 to 4 ft. Blooms early June.

HENRYI—(See illustration page 12.) I had rather call this lily "Golden Speciosum" and plant it in a shady spot close to the other Speciosums. The blossoms are of a soft golden yellow with a tinge of light green through the center. It is excellent for bouquets, opens readily in water from the largest to the tiniest bud. loves shade to intensify the golden yellow, and is not disturbed by mice. Your garden is not complete without a few Henryi. (Please remember these are Oregon grown bulbs.) Height 5 to 9 ft. Blooms Aug.-Sept.

MARTAGON ALBUM—Most of our white lilies have been bell-shaped, but Martagon album is a little Turk's cap, dainty and refreshing. It is pure white with yellow anthers, excellent for a wild or rock garden but will find itself thoroughly at home in your border. Height 2 to 3 ft. Blooms June.

PARDALINUM (The Panther or Leopard Lily)—Light orange and yellow recurved flowers, spotted with crimson. Bulbs increase rapidly and form large clumps. They particularly enjoy a moist location and are hardy anywhere and easy to grow. Height 3 to 4 ft. Blooms June.

PHILIPPINENSE—(See illustration page 12.) This lily is fast gaining the popularity it deserves in our gardens. Price's variety, which I'm offering, blooms before frost time, usually in August, and is hardy anywhere in the United States. The long trumpet shaped blossoms are pure white, with a slight pink tinge to the ribs externally. It is slender, dainty, graceful, fragrant. As it seldom grows higher than 18 to 20 inches, it is an excellent lily for your rock garden, providing it is not too dry, but best of all, it forms a wonderful foreground in your border. Blooms August.

REGALE (Regal Lily)—This lily is so well known it seems almost absurd to describe it. There really should be a slogan of "A Dozen Regals for Every Garden in the United States"—and those who have room, plant more. Then we could travel from shore to shore and inhale the fragrance of this beautiful white bell-shaped lily, with its deep golden throat and pink mid-ribs, blooming during June and July. VERMILION
BRILLIANT

SHUKSAN—This is one of the various new hybrids that has made a name for itself, and is now established in our gardens. It resembles Humboldtii but has the sturdiness of the Pardalinum—yellow background with maroon spots. Grows 3 to 5 ft. Blooms July-August.

WASHINGTONIANUM

Each $1.10; 6 bulbs $6.00; 12 bulbs $10.00

There are certain lilies illustrated on these pages not listed for sale this season because my stocks have become temporarily depleted.

when our gardens need a trumpet lily. (3) It is very fragrant. (4) We can give you good, fresh, Oregon-grown bulbs. In very severe climates, Sulphureum can be protected with a heavy winter mulch. It grows 4 to 5 ft. and blooms Aug.-Sept.

SUNSET (Pardalinum Giganteum)—This magnificent red lily (see colored illustration) is the finest red lily yet offered for your garden. I'm sorry I cannot show you the sturdy stalks and heavy green foliage. It grows 5 to 10 ft. high, blooms July-August, has luxuriant foliage, is extremely hardy, easy to grow and is crowned with many beautiful blossoms. It thrives in sun or partial shade, likes plenty of water and good drainage, and as a background for your other lilies, or in your border, it has no superior. The clear red of this lily blending with its yellow center lends a tone of harmony rather than discord in your garden. I hope some day that the "Sunset Lily" will be growing in every American garden.

SULPHUREUM—There are four good reasons why I wish my customers would plant more Sulphureum lilies in their gardens: (1) Sulphureum has large sulphur-yellow trumpet blossoms that blend with any flower in your garden. (2) It blooms late in the season

L. SPECIOSUM RUBRUM

SPECIOSUM RUBRUM (Illustrated)—This is one of our latest lilies to bloom, and one of the sweetest, with a white background, pink dots and shadings of pink to carmine. It grows 3 to 5 feet high and blooms in September. For years I have wanted to offer you this lily, but I did not wish to sell foreign grown bulbs, so I have waited until the supply of home grown ones was not so limited, and this year I can offer these in two sizes.

HARDY LILIES FOR THE AMATEUR

I have selected five fine hardy lilies which I can recommend for an amateur's garden. My selection is made to give a long succession of bloom and the best result without too much care.

Concolor—A beautiful little red star lily.

Tenuifolium—Small, hardy, red; blooms in May.

Regal—Requires little care and gets bigger and better each season.

Willmottiae—Adds color in mid-summer.

Henryi—Tall and stately, shedding its golden beauty on the late summer garden.

Two each of the above bulbs for $2.00. You will be proud of these, I'm sure.

TENUIFOLIUM—(See illustration page 1.) This is still the “gayest of little lilies” with its bright cheery red blossoms, bringing into our gardens a “blotch of red” in May and early June. I am trying to place the price of this lily within the reach of every garden, so you can grow a “quantity” of them. Grows 1 to 2 ft. Blooms May-June.

Blooming size	$.85	$1.50	$2.85	$10.80
Larger bulbs	1.00	2.25	4.25	14.00

TENUIFOLIUM GOLDEN GLEAM—My field of this lily in May was just what the name implies—a gleam of gold. It resembles the Tenuifolium only in size and shape and height. Height 1 to 2 ft. Blooms May-June.

	6	12	25	100
Blooming size	$1.35	$2.50	$4.95	$19.00
Larger bulbs	2.25	4.00	7.85	30.00

TESTACEUM (Nankeen)—This is an outstanding lily of soft apricot or yellow buff, whose demand far exceeds the supply. In some localities it demands extra care to grow it, but where one is successful, undisturbed clumps will give you a good bloom for years. It is the only lily of its color and truly worth the price. Plant this lily EARLY. Place your orders EARLY. Height 2-5 ft. Blooms June-July.

	Each	6	12	25	100
6-7 inch cir.....	$.90	$4.70	$9.00	$16.50	$31.25

8-9 inch cir.....	1.75	9.00	17.50	33.25	64.00

TIGRINUM splendens—I know that some people do not care for the Tiger lily, and I sometimes wonder if it isn't because of the name “Tiger”, for I'm sure if they could see my private garden in late August or early September, they would be more than pleased with the tone the Tigrinum splendens gives to my garden. I scattered them here and there throughout the border, and just left them alone—and one bulb that four years ago had one sturdy stalk, this year has sixteen sturdy stalks. It will be almost a garden in itself when it blooms in late August or early September. Wouldn't you enjoy a few of them in your garden? Height 4 to 6 ft. Blooms August-September.

Medium size bulbs.....	$1.20	$2.25	$4.25	$14.00
Selected size	1.90	3.25	6.25	23.00

TIGRINUM flore pleno—This is the only double lily I have. The word “lily” seems to associate itself in our minds with a single blossom, and we sometimes resent the thought of a double lily, but I think you will find this double lily an addition to your garden, not only because it is an attractive lily in itself, but it will prolong the “reign of the Tigers” after most of the other lilies are gone. It grows 3 to 5 ft. Blooms Aug.-Sept.

Six bulbs $2.00; 12 bulbs $3.50; 25 bulbs $6.85

UMBELLATUM—The Umbellatum is very reliable, is early flowering, has many umbellate upright blossoms and a dignified sturdy growth that makes it very welcome either in your June garden, where it eventually sends forth many stalks, or for porch bouquets. Ht. 3-4 ft. Blooms May-June.

6	12	25	100
$1.55	$2.85	$5.45	$19.15

WASHINGTONIANUM (Mt. Hood)—This is Oregon's beloved lily—dainty white bell-shaped blossoms that change to wine color with age. It may take two years before it feels at home in your garden, but it is so dainty and sweet, I'm sure you will agree with those who so patiently waited, and say, "It's worth it". These bulbs were grown from seed on my own ranch.

Matilija

(Pronounce the "ja" like "ha".)

The scientific name of this plant is Romneya Conteri. It grows five to eight feet high, producing a continuous growth of numerous beautiful white flowers with orange center, 5 to 6 inches across, delicate, transparent and delightfully fragrant. It blooms from August until frost and is a wonderful cut flower, keeping in excellent condition for two weeks if the water is changed daily.

This perennial plant dies down each fall, reappearing in the spring, same as other perennials. It is perfectly hardy except in states north of Philadelphia, where it should be mulched.

I can give you good strong plants for $1.00 each.

MATILIJA

MUSCARI

MUSCARI (Grape Hyacinth) — These are deep blue with nice long stems. Grow them in your rock garden or the foreground of your border—but better still, plant them so they will form great clumps of blue at little unexpected places. You will find them delightful in the early spring. Please do not ask me to make shipment for less than 100 unless you are placing an order for other bulbs, too.

100 bulbs $3.00; 500, $14.00; 1000, $26.00

Hemerocallis

The New Day Lilies

HEMEROCALLIS

These are the lovely new Hybrid Day Lilies which are so rapidly finding their place in our gardens, and so much in demand that some of the varieties I sold last year, we had to discontinue until we again have a supply of them. But I'm offering three varieties I couldn't offer last year and three others that are very popular.

Hemerocallis is a perennial, simple and easy to grow, pleasing, fragrant and harmonious in the garden, loves an abundance of water and good soil, yet will grow even on poor dry land, and makes itself at home in sun or shade. These new varieties will delight you.

D. D. WYMAN—Very large flower of golden yellow, with a tawny splash across each petal. Midsummer bloom.
Each $1.00; three for $2.00

FLAMID — Rich orange yellow with brownish reverse. A very prolific bloomer. July flowering.
Each $1.00; three for $2.00

GOLDENI—One of the most distinct in the list—a very rich orange-sherbet, with salmony undertone. Very free producer of flowers. medium in height, blooms July and early August.
Each $1.00; three for $2.50

J. A. CRAWFORD—Bright yellow with apricot tints. One of the best.
Each $1.00; three for $2.50

MANDARIN—Clear lemon yellow, with greenish cast in the heart of each blossom. Very tall, wide open, recurved type of flower.
Each 75c; three for $2.00

MRS. W. H. WYMAN—A lovely glistening pale lemon yellow, with delicately curved petals. The latest of all.

JAPANESE IRIS

Japanese Iris

A selection of very fine varieties.

CLOUD DRESS — Double. Gray lined lightly with purple lines. Each 50c.

HATSUKI—Single. Uniform blue; very attractive; strikingly blue. Each 50c.

KOMACHI—Double. Deep violet purple variety of great beauty. Each 50c.

KOMBARIN—Double. Extra fine early white. Each 50c.

NISHIKA—Single. Extra large bright rose, heavily marbled and splashed with white. One of the finest. Each 75c.

SHIGA — Double. Reddish blue, very large petals, heavily veined white. Each 50c.

SHIMOYO — Single. Heavily veined violet on a gray ground. Each $1.00.

TUJI—Single. Dark violet blue, flaked with white. Each 50c.

ONE EACH OF THE ABOVE EIGHT VARIETIES for $4.00

Japanese Iris love moisture and sunshine, but it isn't necessary that they grow in bogland. Give them a sunny location in your garden and supply them generously with water during the spring. Do not give them lime, but have the soil somewhat acid and with a summer mulch (peat preferred) to keep the ground cool and from baking, you can have success with them.

Pansy Seed

OREGON GIANTS

Mrs. Ellis (the originator of "Oregon Giants") has given me permission to make you the following offer and as I can recommend these highly, I am glad to offer them to my customers.

1 packet—600 seed.....$1.00
3 packets—600 seed, each..... 2.00

HYACINTHUS PLUMOSUS — This is a blue feathery or plumed hyacinth, which is quite pleasing. I'm offering it to my customers as a continuation for a blue border in their gardens after the Muscari has gone by, and I'm sure if you will try it, you will be pleased with the result.

ITEMS OF IMPORTANCE

If you wish lilies which I have not listed, write me. I may have them but not in sufficient quantity to list.

Every bulb I offer has already bloomed or budded to bloom (see Giganteum himalaicum for exception). I do not sell the blossoms but disbud to allow the strength of the stalk to return to the bulb for next year's blooming.

Candidum, Testaceum and Muscari are dormant in July—please place your orders early.

Your shipment will be made when the bulbs are dormant. Lilies do not like to lie out of the ground longer than positively necessary, so please place your orders early and I will ship them direct from my fields.

I guarantee all bulbs to be true to name and to reach you in good healthy condition, but I cannot guarantee them to grow in your garden under circumstances beyond my control. Any complaints must be made immediately upon receipt of shipment.

As I shall prepay all shipments to destination, if your express office is different from your postal station, kindly give both with your order.

Please do not send orders for less than $2.00.

If you are not already a customer, kindly send check with your order.
